"Solving Problems Without Passports"

Dear MUN Delegates,

Selamat Datang! Welcome to the Model United Nations. On behalf of the entire secretariat, we give you our best wishes and warmest welcome. We hope that you have all been looking forward to this convention as much as we have, and that the next three days prove a memorable experience for all of us.

To all new delegates – welcome, and may you enjoy your first IASAS MUN as much as we did! To returning delegates, we know you enjoyed your first MUN, and may this one prove more memorable still!

The charter of the United Nations declares that ‘since wars begin in the minds of men (and women), it is in the minds of men (and women) that the defences of the peace must be constructed.’ It is these defences that we attempt to build through the Model United Nations, as we attempt to foster a global perspective, and paradigms that value negotiation and diplomacy over violence and war. The MUN may be a small step to world peace, but it is said that ‘a journey of a thousand miles begins with a single step’ (Lao Tzu). If we take from this convention greater pluralism, an enhanced global understanding, friendships, and the skills of negotiation and diplomacy, then we will be on our way.

Over the next three days, we will, in the words of UN Secretary General Kofi Annan, be ‘solving problems without passports.’ In committee, we tackle the issues of communicable diseases and the inequitable distribution of water resources, while formulating a more efficient approach to international peacekeeping and attempting to resolve the conflict on the Korean peninsula. Delegates in the Security Council examine topics such as the restructuring of the Security Council and the situation in Iraq. While solving all these problems may seem a tall order for three days, bear in mind that these are the among the most pressing issues facing humankind today, and that one day, some of us may be able to deal with these issues.

Welcome, once again, and best of luck. May we all excel, and may this MUN prove truly rewarding for us all.

Our best wishes in the days ahead.

Security Council Delegates,

Welcome to the 20th annual IASAS Model United Nations Conference. Though it is in competitive spirit that we congregate here to debate the issues of the world, the conference provides each participant with a diverse pool of intellect, cultural diversity and social opportunities. I hope that each participant takes the time to notice the wisdom, wit and sex appeal of fellow delegates that will permeate the conference this year.

I would like to congratulate each Security Council member on having been picked to represent their school at the highest level. The MUN Security Council shoulders a heavy responsibility of enacting its role in accordance with that of the UN Security Council. Hence, each member of the Security Council is called upon to represent their country with the zest and patriotism of a true diplomat and citizen. Most of all, each member of the Security Council shoulders a direct responsibility to the United Nations itself.

In the course of the next three days, the Security Council will work efficiently to debate the five topics- the Security Council will debate the need to ensure an effective government for Iraq while attempting to implement a UN "road map" toward peace between Israel and Palestine. Of equal significance are the humanitarian issues of curbing human trafficking and the question of immigration and its impact on industrialized nations. Last but not least, the issue of restructuring the U.N Security Council will be tackled. The inclusion of this issue at this year's conference promises to hold some very insightful yet exciting speeches. It is only in engaging the issues with the viewpoint of one's country and the willingness to cooperate with the United Nations that the issues will be treated sensitively and effectively..

The MUN experience has always been one of our great memories, one that the Jakarta International School – in conjunction with the International School Bangkok – will uphold at the 20th annual IASAS MUN Conference. Let us endorse the motto of this year's conference, "Solving Problems without Passports" with great vigor. We wish all of you the best of luck in your endeavors.

Regards,

Kanishk Laroya
